Type(s) of inequality and how inequality is defined. We focus principally on the issue of inequality in exposure to crime victimisation. In doing so, we take account of differences according to age, sex, socio-economic status, economic stress, educational level and health conditions.

Justice | Understanding Inequalities

However, it is not clear how the justice of a health inequality's cause could settle the question of its permissibility unless no valid principle of justice applies directly to health inequalities. If that is right, then in addition to eschewing even partial reliance on it himself, Daniels has to show that no version of the free-standing approach is valid.
